FAREWELL TO NORTHPORT.

I said, "The days will soon be over,—
The precious days at Northport shore,
Then we must part with friend and lover,
Must part, to meet, perhaps no more."
The winds were fresh—the waves were ringing,
The golden hours were swiftly winging,
And voices here and there were singing,
"Shall meet—shall meet, to part no more."
"Shall meet, and where?" my spirit questioned.
An answering voice fell on my ear—
"Within Our Father's many mansions,
The Saviour left us to prepare,
When we arise from out our prison,
And find the fadeless fields elysian,
Fairer than earth, or earthly vision,
The Heavenly City, new and clear."
"Then we shall join the angel chorus,
'We meet—we meet, to part no more,'
The grand, Eternal sea before us—
Beneath the everlasting shore."
So. Windham, Me. MRS. P. C. DOLK.

The laughing flights of song are still
That charmed the springtide air;
Down rivulet and grassy rill
No wayward perfumes fare;
Upon her throne Queen August lies
With languor in her dreamful eyes.

The idle clouds that stray the blue,
Their mission now forget;
A blended note the wood-doves coo
Of passion and regret;
The sparrows flute a faded tune;
The year has reached its afternoon.

"Be sad," you say? Pray why be sad,
When earth and sky and sea are glad?
The wild waves roar and mock the sea;
The fierce winds warble strains of glee;
The cloudless sky is bright and fair,
And tinged with colors rich and rare;
The birds among the pine-tops sing,
With cricket chirps the forests ring;
Life has some thorns, but more of flowers;
Some sad, but more of joyful hours;
And all this sorrow, woe and pain,
Is earthly loss for heavenly gain.
Unchained my thoughts; my heart is glad;
My soul refuses to be sad.

AT THE SEASIDE.

The seaside season is at its full. Tens of thousands of visiting feet tramp daily on and along the shores of Maine from Kittery to Quoddy, and still we have seen but the advance guard of the great army which is yet to make Maine its summer vacation ground. The future of our State cannot be measured in three days ago was measuring dry goods or defacing ledger-paper, rejoices in a slight coating of tan, acquired by a few trips in a cat-boat, and astonishes his listeners by his saline bearing, "Wind was a little west o'sou," he says, "and blowing half a gale, b'Jove! Had hard work to make the point—nearly carried away on our gaff that last tack to starboard and took in bucketsfull, but we hove up and are told about enormous cods caught in some unfrequented place without any witnesses, and still more gigantic falsehoods in denial of yesterday's sea-sickness.

DEEP SEA FISHING. At some seaside resorts the girls are going into ecstasies over deep sea fishing. This is what one of the little dears writes about her experience in the matter: "Oh, you've no idea how perfectly lovely it is. You are sleeping as peacefully as anything when all at once a pebble is thrown against your window and you wake up. It seems as though it was just the middle of the night but it's really three o'clock and time to get up if you're going out cod fishing. So you wake up the other girls and dress with your eyes not more than half open, and get down stairs as softly as you can. And there are the young men waiting for you, and you feel as though you were eloping, or something of the sort. The sky is all soft pinks and blues, the birds are giving a perfect concert, and all the earth looks as if it were just waking up, somehow; the only thing that makes you think of night is a little crescent moon and above it the morning star, and you can't imagine how lovely they look just hanging over the bands of pink and blue below. And then you go to the shore where Maxwell is waiting to take you out, and soon the sun comes right out of the sea, and the breeze is so fresh. And you go way out three or four miles to the shoal water about the ledge, and Maxwell fixes the hooks. He don't put nasty worms on them, but clams and winkles and lobsters; and then you saw your line up and down over the edge of the boat just as he does. And sometimes you get so excited watching him or one of the other men pulling in a great big fish that you just forget all about your own hook; and when you pull it up, after a long while, you find the fish have just quietly eaten the bait all off your hook. Or else you feel the line twitch and you know you've got a bite; and while you're pulling it up it feels just like a whale, and you are certain you've got a tremendous fish, and it turns out to be only a horrid, great sculpin! "Sick?" Well, ye-e-es, just a little, because you know the ground swell for a small boat is just awful, but that's no matter. And it's so queer to come in again, when you feel that you've been up for hours, and it must be noon at the very least, and find the others just through their breakfast. Oh, you just try it once, my dear, and you'll agree that it's awfully jolly."

VACATION SCENES ON PENOBSCOT SHORES.

this matter as the hundreds of miles of sea-coast is capable of furnishing summer homes and haunts for many thousands.

We are apt to do as the Romans do. Every place of resort is full whether it is a mammoth hotel, with wide-spread piazzas, or the merest one-story cottage that was ever built of refuse lumber. Now is the time that young men swagger about in such costumes as were never seen outside of "Pinafore" or "Billy Taylor," and quite cast old sailors into the shade by the extreme saltiness of their manners and conversation. The youth who only up and ran in all right." The ladies gaze admirably at him, while the old fisherman who actually managed the boat, and who is accustomed to such a mild breeze as they had every day of his life, silently grins as he lounges by. Now the pretty girl, sun-burnt and freckled, becomes anything but pretty, and the homely girl in a smart sailor-dress, develops beauty in the most unexpected way. Now there are clam-bakes, sailing parties, hops and picnics of all kinds, and the rocks on moonlight evenings are occupied by scattered groups of seldom more than two, and tremendous whoppers

The Commercial says:—The public undertook to clean out the Waverley House at Northport, that is, they thought they could empty the larder, and about two hundred raided the dining room at dinner time. Landlord Danforth and Clerk Nason were equal to the emergency, however, and fed every one acceptably. The house is doing a big business and, under the direction of the above named gentlemen, is a favorite place of resort.

Sitting in the sand, he had clasped her hand, "Millie," said he, "do you love—?" Now, was it mean? "Yes," she said, "Ralph, I do love ice cream."

WANTED!

To see the man who will pay a reasonable price to possess the most desirable and enchanting spot on earth, of seventy acres, located in the State of Maine, upon the SUMMIT of Mt. PERCIVAL, Northport, whose shores are washed by the Atlantic.

Tourists from all quarters of the globe say the view from its summit is more ravishing than can be obtained from any other mountain. Looking landward from the South to Northwest and horizon are seen city and hamlets, mountains, forests, and fields, cattle, horses and sheep, upon a thousand hills and meadows grazing. Seaward from Northwest to South and Atlantic Ocean can be seen mountains, rivers, villages, and the most beautiful bay in the world. Also over three hundred islands where sailing vessels and steamers of all classes are seen cruising in their channels and harbors.

Near the summit is a MINERAL or WELL-SPRING of life, where those that desire perfect health and length of days should drink of its waters.

TENT ECHOES.

Tent walls are thin and passers by cannot well help overhearing what is said inside especially if it is projected in the strident tones peculiar to some female voices. A visitor who was perambulating the Grounds last evening gives his auricular experience in the following medley report:—

"Come Sarah, hurry up the grub, I'm most starved. Seems as tho' I hai'nt ate anything for a week."—"Don't you spose Fred will come? Oh, dear, its too bad."—"I tell you she's a beauty, two white feet and a spot in her face, and she's a clipper on the road. I wouldn't look at $200. for her."—"Yes pretty close election in our county but we're sure to carry the State. They ought to give us a speech from Blaine tho' to help out."—"Well I guess we were crowded, three to a bed an narrow at that."—"Hurry up Mae suppers' waiting. Yes coming right along soon's I fix up a little."—"We had just a splendid swim. Jim ducked me twice and I got his mouth full of salt water, and didn't he sputter. It's awful fun though and I'm going in again to-morrow morning at high water."—"Oh, May don't be so old maidish. Of course we've got to pack close, so many in a little tent, but I think its jolly."—"One of the best sermons I ever heard on the Ground. Hope he'll speak again before the meeting is over."—"Pass the milk; say, its curdled."—"All in black with white trimmings and a linen stomacher; stunning, you bet."—"Breads' all gone."—"A whole drive of us are going over to the pavilion to-night."—"Its enough to make anybody sick to see the airs widder—puts on down here, and in mourning too, and her husband dead only six months. You'd think shes' a girl of 20. She ought to be church malled."—"If I'd a known things were so high priced I'd a brought down all we needed. Won't catch me so next time."—"No we're not going home till Tuesday; were going to see the whole thing out."—"Most 10 o'clock, get ready to dowse the glim."—"Tom have you fed the mare?"—"I'm sleepy as a dog; stop your noise young ones, and go to bed."

ZEPHYRS.

Canes? Well, a few.

Tents—the woods are full of 'em.

The harbor is alive with sailing craft.

Silhouettes evenings on tent walls. Admission free.

Wait for the great temperance meeting Saturday and Sunday.

The roll of the balls in the bowling alley resounds thro' the grove.

The music by the Boys' band will resound through the grove Saturday.

The nobbiest passenger team here this year is the "Niobe." No tears.

The pavilion on So. Shore is open every evening, and is well patronized.

There are 27 society cottages and tents in the "circle"—17 cottages and 10 tents.

Pond lilies and golden rod for lapels and girdles, are in vogue for lads and lasses here.

The grove on So. Shore is alive with booths, stands, and various catch-penny humbugs.

Try a drink of the mineral water from the new Northport mineral spring, for sale on the square.

One of the ships of the North Atlantic squadron was in the bay Tuesday, visiting the quarantine station.

The 14, Me, reunion here next week will be treated to a banquet at the Waverley, instead of a clambake.

The cutter Woodbury steamed into harbor and anchored off Clear View cottage, So. Shore, Wednesday noon.

Six steamers at the wharf here Thursday, ranging in size from the diminutive Susie May to the huge Boston boat Penobscot.

Thursday was the big day, the attendance being way up among the thousands. And oh, so dusty. Northport avenue is dust bound.

The new game here this season is called "Matrimony." Hearts are trumps, diamonds are in prospective, and sometimes clubs win.

Schooner yachts, Bonita, Capt. Webster of Vinalhaven, and Fannie Hayden, Capt. Parker of Bucksport, are anchored here for the week.

Quite a delegation went up to Belfast from here to see the Bankers Daughter played, and returned dissatisfied with both the play and the price.

What do you think of this number of the S. B. Our first page engraving is the handsomest and costliest ever given in a Maine summer resort paper.

A party from Hampden chartered a vessel which took them here and makes their abiding place during the week. She is anchored off the old landing place.

A big excursion, 1000 or more, from way down East, over the E. & N. A. R. R., is expected at Belfast Friday. A big crowd of them will lap over to Northport.

A wide new bridge has been built over the gulch leading from Bayview square to So. Shore. It was much needed, as the travel is large, a constant stream of pedestrians passing to and fro.

The question of a grange festival here is still discussed by many Patrons in Waldo and adjoining counties. There is still time. September is a long, and usually one of the most pleasant months of the year.

A match game of b. b. on the Bay View sq. grounds here Wed. between the Reserves of Belfast, and the Northports, Capt. D. Stanford, resulted in a score of 6 to 5 in favor of the home team. The Ns. played at Lincolnville Thursday.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.

The indications bid fair for a large and successful temperance meeting here next Saturday and Sunday Aug. 28-29, if the weather proves fair. The parties having the matter in charge have made full and ample preparations for speakers, music, transportation, etc., and have fully advertised the meeting.

The bills give the following speakers: Saturday—childrens day—Short addresses by Revs. A. S. Ladd, V. B. Cushing, A. A. Lewis, J. R. Clifford and others. Recitations, etc., by children, music by Brunswick boys' band, two cornetists, violinist, and several vocalists.

Sunday: Forenoon reform clubs. 12 to 1 P. M. sacred concert. Afternoon, Good Templars. 1 to 2, children's hour. 2 P. M. Sermon by Volney B. Cushing. 3. P. M. Address by Neal Dow, followed by brief addresses by T. R. Simonton and other able speakers.

Instrumental music in charge of Prof. and Mrs. Bent; Vocal by Prof. Owen of Buxton; organist Miss Willey of Portland. Mrs. Ada Sturgis vocalist, and Bertha Webb the girl violinist will be present.

Reduced rates have been arranged for on all steamers and trains Saturday and Sunday. Special trains will run Sunday from as far West as Waterville and Skowhegan, and East as Dexter and Newport. Steamer Penobscot will make an excursion Sunday from Bangor and up river, and steamer Rockland will connect with all trains at Belfast for Northport and return.

A large amount of local talent both music and speaking has been engaged, and will be used as required to fill up the spare time.

If this meeting proves the success it promises, it will be the initiatory for a series of annual temperance meetings here, the same as in the Western part of the State, and we trust the meeting may be not only pleasant to those attending but productive of much good for the cause of temperance.

IN WESLEYAN GROVE.

The clans have gathered from near and from far, and Northport this week is literally a city by the sea. The annual campmeeting with all the accompaniments that attend and go to make it up in its entirety is in full operation at this writing, and Wesleyan Grove is alive with humanity and vocal with the hum of human voices.

The upper grove is stacked with teams, and carriages ranging from a sulky to double seats, and coaches, which have brought the multitude from the country, while the wharf is lined with vessels, from the rowboats, yachts and other sailing craft, to the steamers miniature and huge.

In the auditorium the religious meetings are continually going on, powerful and interesting sermons being listened to by a large, quiet and interested audience, while the music of the choir breaking in on the air occasionally adds rhythm and concord to the scene.

On Broadway and down Main St. a crowd is always moving to and fro, evidently never stopping or ceasing for hours at a time, but always good natured, orderly, and well behaved as becomes the place and its objects. The crowd overflows the Grounds proper and laps down onto So. Shore which is hardly less densely populated than the grove, and all the streets roads and shores adjacent are occupied with people. Ruggles park is black with spots of humanity, the hotel and veranda is always packed, the society cottages absolutely swarmed, and all the cottages are filled with their annual visitants, making up the campmeeting crowd enjoying itself each in its own way, be it laughing, eating, praying, singing, flirting, or walking, but seemingly always on the move.

FOOD.

ould say so.
at Juno was in the bay Monday.
colored brethren from Warren are here for the week.

When you go home we wish you bon voyage. Come again.
High water and lovely boating at sunset and sunrise this week.

And now his mellifluous voice is heard "all aboard for the campground."
Don't fail to visit the summit of Mt. Percival before you leave Northport.
The latest delicacy is "boiled clam juice." All right Northport can supply it.

All the cottages on Murphy's Point at Little River are full of summer guests.
Canoeing on the mirrorlike waters of the Penobscot is the acme of water transportation.

We are indebted to the Bangor Commercial for the cut of Blaine's cottage given in this issue.

Steamer Florence on the Belfast and Castine route will touch here regularly all this week.
For all our errors and shortcomings in these columns this season, we are willing to be forgiven.

Old habitues say they never saw so many people at Northport previous to Campmeeting as were present last Sunday.
An unfortunate who "got full" Monday was put in the lock up alias ice house, and cooled off, and sent on his way the next day advised to sin no more.

Those wanting full files of the SEA BREEZE for the season can obtain them at the publication office No. 10, Main St., Belfast, or they will be sent by mail. Price 25 cts.

A delegation of young Penobscot braves are here, but their mission is not warlike. The tomahawk is buried or was left at home, and they are engaged in selling baskets and bows and arrows.

The vacationists at Walker's villa this week are E. P. Walker and family, and Miss Pullen, Vinalhaven. Chas. E. Littlefield and family, Rockland; Mrs. Wm. Ayer, Montville; Mrs. F. N. Brown, Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Steamer Pioneer of Vinalhaven will run from Rockland here Wednesday and Thursday and from Winterport here Saturday to bring down the children of Rainbow Juvenile Temple to take part in the temperance meeting.
Among the latest arrivals at Northport who are regaling themselves for a few days only at the pleasant cottage of Mrs. Burbank, are B. P. Palmer of the Globe Mr. Harry P. Palmer, Miss Lizzie M. Knowles and W. H. Burbank all of Boston.

The travel over the new road via So. Shore has been very large for the past two weeks. We counted 100 teams pass Clear View cottage on So. Shore avenue in 45 minutes last Sunday P. M. At least one thousand persons went over the road during the day.

A little son of Mrs. Ara Warren of Bangor, on So. Shore, was bitten by a Spitz dog Tuesday, but not seriously injured. He was attended by Dr. Bragg of Lincoln who is tenting here, who cauterized the wound, and the boy was taken home Wednesday.

The new arrangement of trains at Belfast on the M. C. R. R. is a great convenience for Northportians. Passenger trains now leave Belfast at 7.5 A. M. 3 and 7.55 P. M. and make connections at Burnham, east and west, arriving at Belfast, at 5.20 and 10.5 A. M. and 6 P. M.

While a party from here were driving between the two Camp Grounds on Tuesday, two wheels on the same side suddenly collapsed. The driver went gracefully out over the dash-board. The rest in less haste and more dignity reached the ground in various ways. All were thankful that nothing more serious than a few bruises was the result of the accident.

Robert Sylvester's, guests, a party of ten in all, enjoyed a twilight drive to the Camp Ground Tuesday by way of Temple Heights. The fine scenery was much admired, as well as the handsome appearance of the Camp Ground.

The premature departure of F. P. Reed and family for New York City this week, is much regretted by his many friends at the Cove.

Guests at J. J. Shaw's:—Mr. and Mrs. M. Laughlin and son, Jamaica Plains; Mrs. L. A. Granger, Miss L. Litzelman, Mrs. McNelley and two children, Boston; W. Coulter and Miss M. Coulter, Boston Highlands.

A few full files of the SEA BREEZE can be ordered at the Postoffice.

Tyler, all of Belfast, with their husbands are occupying Clearview cottage this week.—W. J. Dodge of North Searsport, almost a centenarian, is here as usual to attend the meeting.

One of the pleasantest of our "Northport good times" was enjoyed at cottage "Quietude" Aug. 23d when Mrs. Eben Curtis entertained about twenty friends from Bangor, Brewer, Boston and Searsport who gathered round the table and heartily appreciated the "feast of reason and the flow of soul," as well as the material good things spread before them.

Among the invited guests were J. Gould, Mr. Palmer of the Boston Globe, Commodore Curtis, reporters of the SEA BREEZE and the Belfast Journal, and other distinguished guests, who did ample justice to the following:

INDIVIDUALITIES.

NORTHPORT MINERAL SPRING.

We have several times referred to the mineral spring belonging to Jesse T. Priest, of Northport, and at our suggestion he has had a carriage road built to it, and had the water analyzed by the State Assayer, Prof. Carmichael. The spring is located on Mr. Priest's farm in Northport, and about five miles S. W. from the Camp-ground, and two miles west from Temple Heights. Its curative properties have long been known locally, it having proved highly beneficial in cases of salt rheum and skin diseases.

The State Assayer in his analysis says:—The solids obtained by evaporation amounts to 6.96-100 grains to the gallon, consisting of carbonates, chlorides, sulphates of lime, magnesium and alkalies; also silica, and traces of iron and aluminum. The water is comparatively free from nitrogenous compounds, and the principal constituent appears to be carbonate of lime. Being soft and pure it is beneficial as a beverage. "I should not be surprised to learn that the water is highly appreciated by those hitherto accustomed to the impure waters of city and town supplies."

Mr. Priest is taking measures to bring the water of his spring before the public and make its valuable and medicinal qualities more generally known. He has a supply on the Grounds during camp-meeting for sale, and the multitude can practically test its virtues.

He will make arrangements to furnish it in quantities to hotels and other parties requiring a nice drinking water so highly impregnated with medicinal qualities.

Mr. Mathews, whose team was reported going over the bank on So. Shore last week, was more seriously injured than was at first supposed. He was taken to the Ocean House, attended by physicians, and able to be removed home to Lincolnville this week.

The turn in the avenue where the accident occurred is a dangerous one, and accidents are liable there. A petition will be presented to the town asking that it be widened and railed.

Our old-time and annual visitors to Northport will regret to learn of the death, last winter, of Vinal Hills, of Northport, whose face was so familiar here for many years. He lived at his farm-house at the foot of the hill on the main road, and for fifty years had been identified with and interested in the affairs of the town.

Ruggles park is crowded with humanity in doubles, trios, and quartettes, male and female, resting on the velvety turf.

POLICE, TICKET TAKERS, ETC.

The following have been appointed as ticket collectors and duly sworn as police for the week, and assigned duty as follows:—

Chief—Howard Grant, of Winterport; Supt. of collections—Henry A. Peirce, Lincolnville; At main entrance near the chain—F. R. Prescott and H. A. Peirce; At stable entrance—F. R. Prescott; Northport avenue, head of Main St.—A. T. Morse; At Circle—H. B. Dunbar, and Geo. Joss; At wharf—H. J. Leach and D. V. Nickerson; At So. Shore bridge—J. R. Hurd, and W. T. Peirce; At So. Shore on shore—J. W. Knight, North Shore—W. A. Harvell.

They are each furnished with a silver badge to be worn conspicuously on the coat lapel, and will be prepared to maintain order, attend to the duties of their stations, and answer all necessary questions pertaining to the grounds within their beats.

Mr. Harriman of Bangor has been engaged as special and assigned to So. Shore. Specials have also been located at the Waverley, and the managers propose to have the best of order and quiet maintained, within their jurisdiction during the whole week including the temperance campmeeting.
